

narkose.ch approach

narkose.ch is a company specialising in rendering anaesthetic-related services.

We link up service providers (anaesthetists and nursing staff) with service recipients (medical practices, out-patient clinics and hospitals), and ensure these services are rendered by both sides in compliance with the objectives.

We seek optimum solutions for both parties in the health sector's increasingly difficult economic environment.

We commit to the Total Quality Management approach, and strive to continuously improve the company and all its staff.

We render our services by constantly taking into account our own specialist area, its standards, and the associated quality requirements.

Our main priority is to look after our patients, whom we provide with flawless, specialist treatment, thereby catering to their individual human needs.

We consider the surgeons as our partners in achieving the common goal of offering the patients the best possible care. We agree to perform our service assignment for our surgeon colleagues.

For us, the out-patient anaesthetic services performed externally are part of an overall service rendered by the respective medical practice. That's why we get involved in the service process, and act in compliance with our clients.

At (outpatient) clinics, we commit to upholding the guidelines of the respective institutions, and help to achieve their objectives wherever possible. In the operating room, we work efficiently and in a team-oriented manner.

We actively ensure a sound working environment in all our places of work by having a positive attitude towards the work and fellow people.

Insofar as is economically possible, we assist our staff according to their individual requirements and abilities. As an employer, we strive to achieve a motivating working environment in which creativity and independent thinking is promoted and rewarded.
